C., Sabbath Evening, July 6, 1863 Quit You Like Men. - 1 Cor 16: 13. You recollect the opening words of the famous French preacher, at the funeral of the Grand Monarch: Only God is Great! As I stand to-night amid strange scenes, the waves of excitement and awful desolation surging around me, and great changes, involving the interests, and happiness, and national existence even, of thirty millions of human beings; I feel Only God is Great! It seems a kind of impiety to recognize any hand but that which made the world. I know men figure in these scenes largely, but I look upon them only as insignificant agents; and their very insignificance serves only to bring all the more clearly into the foreground, that mysterious Power which led the bannered hosts of Israel through the wilderness - which stood by Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego in the fiery furnace; and which, in the visions of heaven, John saw riding forth in righteousness, to judge and to make war! That august Power is passing through the nation, and amid convulsion and the shock of battle, his voice rings out like a trumpet, Quit you like men! Our Government, the freest, noblest, best Government of the world, is in peril. All its free institutions are threatened by a gigantic and unholy rebellion, evoked from the sea of stormy passions.
